Opportunities Worth Celebrating

WRITTEN BY MAYOR MARK JOHNSON

As I write this, I am sitting comfortably in the shade watching an energetic black-capped chickadee taking advantage of the recently refreshed bird feeder I have hanging from an old tree in my backyard. I spend a moment to look around, if only to realize my grass is turning green. Just a few short weeks ago, I feared that might not happen because of our difficult water situation. Amazing what a few light rainstorms are capable of. One of my golden retrievers is constantly nudging my arm for some attention, and I must keep reminding him; I have work to do. He doesn't care. Despite rising gas prices, housing problems, rapid inflation and supply chain shortages, I can't help but acknowledge that we have it good. Please don't interpret this as being unsympathetic because I am anything but that. In reality, I have a reoccurring thought, that continues to haunt me.

Shortly before I walked outside to write this newsletter, my wife and I were watching the world news. Current events across the globe, particularly in eastern Europe, are heartbreaking. There are many that have little opportunity to just relax, much less to find an opportunity to celebrate anything beyond the repelling of their oppressors.

I am proud that so many of us have in our thoughts, actions and prayers, turned to the compassion of others. Other human beings, we do not now or never will know. Some of the most selfless acts of kindness come amid crisis and conflict. It really puts in perspective the things that matter most.

So here we are in the month of June with our 'Round-up Days' celebration before us and it may seem strange or even awkward that despite world events, I speak of our celebration. But I am. In fact, as I think of the tyranny that can so easily turn upon us, it is of great importance that we celebrate what we have as well as the simple things that make our lives enjoyable.

Lehi City hosted our first Rodeo in 1937. Since that year, we have added many events in celebration of our community and our freedoms. If you haven't participated before or if you are always in the front lines of the parade, please join me in celebrating our community, our history, and those virtues we hold close to our hearts. It may seem odd, but it is a good time to keep in mind the simple things that are important to us. Above all, look for opportunities to help others enjoy the things that we are celebrating.

Please participate and I'll see you at one of our many events!
